

E. Randal Johnson, AIA
President and Principal

Raised in the Pacific Northwest and formally trained at the University of Oregon, Randy Johnson believes in the interaction between architecture and landscape. He expresses this design philosophy through an understanding of scale and proportions, focusing on massing, details, and materials to create experiential spaces.

Randy has led the hospitality design at 4240 since its inception. He changes architectural leadership roles as required to build and bond teams together in their most productive and creative form. His appreciation for details always contributes to the richness of 4240's projects. Consistently through Randy's management and design approaches, the result is an architecture of high quality.
